TRAINING MODULE ON INTERPERSONAL COMPETENCES

EXERCISE

“TELL ME A STORY”

Each participant should have the chance to tell 2 stories:

1. The first on a communication gone well
2. The second on a communication gone bad.

After each participant has told their story, there will be a short debriefing on what made that communication going well or bad.

If the group is too big, divide the participants into sub-groups, and have them do the exercise in groups: in each sub-group, every participant will tell the 2 stories, while the other people in the sub-group help decoding what made a good /bad communication.

In you do the exercise in sub-groups, at the end of the exercise every sub-group will choose one speaker to debrief the group in plenary, explaining what went on in the group work.
